Background

- Medical doctors are tasked to provide health and medical services so that perceived and real harms are prevented. However, in their profession, and almost on daily bases medical doctors encounter certain pathological cases which require further comprehensive studies from the relevant scholars and health professionals, so that given cases are duly addressed from the medical, moral and shari'ah aspects.

- With the motive to provide an integrated response to given health and medical issues, the Office of The Campus Director in collaboration with the relevant departments of Kulliyyah of Medicine, IIUM Kuantan organises a series of Islamic Clinico-Pathological Conference (iCPC) on issues related to medical and health practices that are also matters of moral and shari'ah concerns.

- iCPC is a collaborative programme between CENTRIS Kuantan and the respective departments of Kulliyyah of Medicine IIUM.

- iCPC sessions would be in a seminary style, a half day academic discussion on selected topics. Given pathological cases would be presented by the relevant medical doctor (s) and clinician (s) from the Kulliyyah of Medicine, IIUM, who will explain the medical aspect of the case. While the moral and shari'ah aspect of given cases are addressed by the relevant scholars from the field of Fiqh and Usul al-Fiqh. Followings are the tentative themes, topics and dates of iCPCs in 2016.

The organising committee of iCPC would be announced later.
