

A self-review report is a platform for the programme owner to evaluate their objective, strength, and weaknesses among others. A sample of the key items to be included in the report are as the following:

1. Introduction of the Programme
2. Student Profile of the Programme
 - Graduate Employability Rate
 - Number of Intake
3. Programme Review
 - National needs
 - Projection of student intake
 - May include feedback from Alumni, Industry panel, Benchmarking visit, Board of Studies, previous Assessors comments
4. Summary of Changes
 - Elaborate and highlight on the changes. May be presented in comparison table
5. Conclusion

The following questions should be considered while completing the self-review report:

- i. What actions are undertaken in relation to these quality areas? Why were these actions chosen? Are these actions appropriate?
- ii. How do we check their effectiveness? What performance indicators do we have? Are the indicators appropriate?
- iii. What do we do as a result of the review?
- iv. Can we measure the degree of achievements? What are the actual outcomes?
- v. Can we improve on the existing actions, even on those that are already effective?
